Course Title: TREATING TEETH THE BIOCLEAR WAY!

Deep Caries Management using the modified Hall's approach

BRIEF OUTLINE:

- Deep caries and its management have been an ever-evolving field of restorative dentistry right from the times of a calcium hydroxide liner like dycal to the modern calcium silicate cements and Portland cements.
- Still inspite of the progress in the various areas of restorative dentistry the dentist is always in a dilemma of the materials to be used and the final restoration to be given to predictably deal with the deep caries lesion which is approximating the pulp.

COURSE OUTLINE:

1. Learn the precise management of deep carious lesions, judicious use (or no use) of the various expensive biomaterials in dentistry to “regenerate” or “preserve” the pulp vitality and give a predictable “Biomimetic” restoration to have the tooth withstand occlusal stresses.
2. Learn to choose the correct matrix to build the contact and contour and understand the use of various sectional matrix systems.
3. Learn predictable - practical - believable and long-lasting composite restorations and use of the correct polishing system will be an additional benefit of the program. A 3-step polish - The PG polish will be a special attraction of the program
